The War Today..

Big Three Unity

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign News Analyst

WE KEEP REPEATING (and with sound reason) the truism that world peace depends on the unity of the Big Three, but when there arises any question of just what might cause a rupture of good relations we are inclined to take cover in order to evade a delicate subject.

We come naturally by this caution. It's a heritage from the European war—the idea of avoiding the discussion of controversial matters which might make hard feelings among the Allies in the midst of a life or death struggle. However, the Hitlerian war is finished (we hope) and we have arrived at a time when frank exchange of views is all to the good, especially since each of the Big Three is anxious to preserve unity. So what are the tender spots?

To begin with there's a completely new and bewildering alignment of power on the continent of Europe. Russia has emerged as the dominant force. Her dominance is due partly to her own vast strength and partly to the fact that two great powers, Germany and Italy, have been rendered impotent. This means that the European spheres of influence have shifted, for the world is divided into zones of influence—like it or not.

Well now, this shift has brought an interlocking of the British and Russian spheres of influence in some places, and might easily affect others. Here then is one of the danger spots, for it's easy to see that deliberate pushing by either nation might give rise to serious difficulties between them. It's a

STALIN KEEPS DINNER DATE WITH TRUMAN

Confers With President
Before Scheduled Opening of Conference

(By Associated Press)
POTSDAM, July 17.—Premier Stalin conferred with President Truman at the Little White House today in company with their ranking foreign affairs officials a few hours before the world-shaping Big Three conference was scheduled to start.

The generalissimo, attired as a marshal of the Soviet union, was accompanied by Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov. They were guests at luncheon of the President and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

The atmosphere of secrecy surrounding the delayed start of the conference with Prime Minister Churchill was heightened by three mysterious explosions in the Russian zone of Berlin.

The conference had been delayed a day by the lateness of the Russian leader. Mr. Truman met Churchill informally yesterday and summoned American shipping experts to Potsdam.

Land Called To Berlin
Truman directed Vice Adm. Emory S. Land, chief of the U. S. Maritime commission, to proceed to Germany as soon as possible, indicating post-war world shipping and utilization of the United States' greatest merchant fleet in history would play a part in the discussions.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the U. S. Army Air Forces, are now on the conference scene.

The parley agenda will cover a world-wide range of subjects, including territorial disputes, occupation, rehabilitation and stabilization.

Adm. William D. Leahy, Truman's personal chief of staff, and the joint chiefs of staff are on hand for advice on military problems such as continuation of the war against Japan.

American and British newspapers predicted Russian participation in the Pacific war would be a likely question for discussion. They also forecast the three Allied leaders would take up the problem of administrative control of Germany.

A communique will be issued at the conclusion of the conferences, which will be conducted in secrecy, although it has been reported President Truman favors earlier communique when progress of the parley warrants.

K. OF C. INSTALLS OFFICERS MONDAY

Ralph W. Whiteleather, district deputy and his staff, conducted installation of officers of Salem council, Knights of Columbus, last evening in the club rooms.

Edwin Probert was installed as grand knight and his associate officers include Urban Lepping, deputy grand knight; Gerald Stull, chancellor; Darrel Rosenberry, advocate; Earl Deville, financial secretary; Fred Steffel, recording secretary; William Mathias, treasurer; Julius Julian, lecturer; Robert Bloor, warden; Terrence Steffel, inside guard; John Ferrence, outside guard; and William Lippert, trustee.

Rev. Fr. John P. Lavelle will serve as chaplain.

Probert appointed the following chairmen for the council's five-point program: William Mathias, Catholic activity; Urban Lepping, membership; Earl Deville, insurance; Gerald Stull, publicity; and Julius Julian, council program.

A picnic is being planned for August for members and their families.

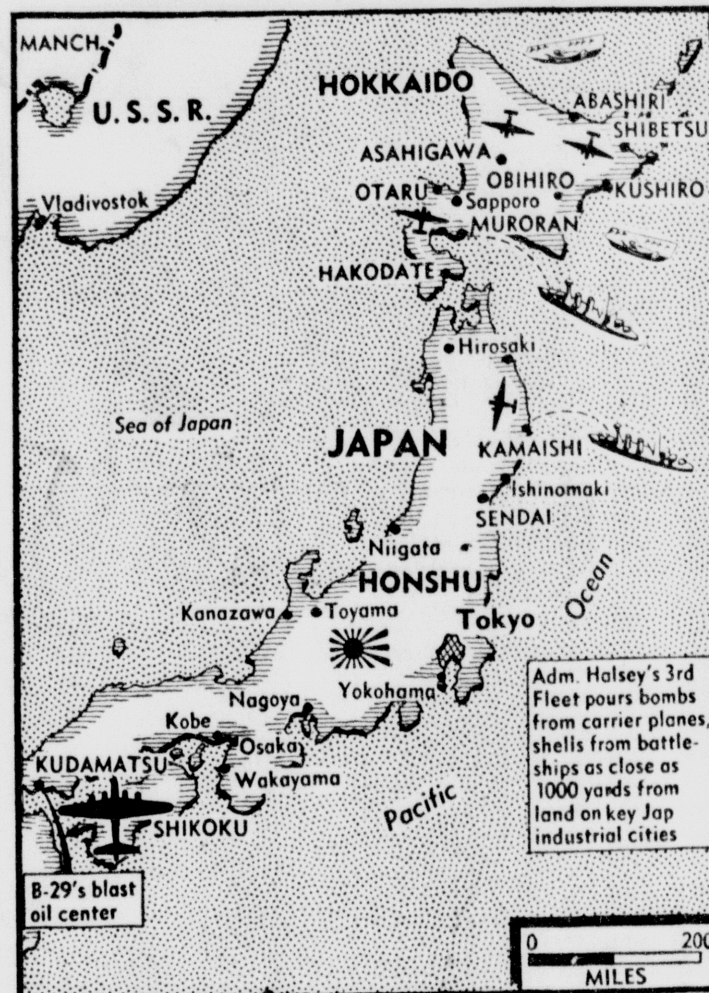

A buffet lunch followed the meeting with short talks by Rev. Fr. J. Richard Gaffney, District Deputy Whiteleather, Past District Deputy Robert Tubbs and Grand Knight Probert.

Third Fleet Blasts Jap Cities

Hokkaido was virtually isolated from the main Japanese island of Honshu when the American Third Fleet blasted at least 10 enemy cities from distances as close as five miles off shore. Muroran and Kamaishi, with giant war industries, were reported practically leveled. At the same time, Superfortresses left oil plants in KUDAMATSU in ruins. Minimum Jap losses were placed at 123 ships and 92 planes destroyed or damaged.

Canadian Liner Burns At Dock, 150 Passengers Hurt

(By Associated Press)
SARNIA, Ont., July 17.—The 360-foot Great Lakes passenger liner Hamonic, carrying 255 passengers, was destroyed by fire today with many persons injured and burned, but a clerk at the Canada steamship lines said: "as far as we know no lives have been lost."

At least 150 persons were treated for burns and other injuries.

The clerk, J. H. Atchison, said it was believed all aboard scrambled to safety after fire broke out in the 1,000-foot long freight docks at Point Edward spread to the vessel. The docks were leveled.

American and Canadian fire fighters joined forces to combat the flames on the ship and ashore.

The Hamonic, one of the largest passenger ships on the lakes, had left Detroit last night on a cruise and was tied up at Point Edward, near the Blue Water bridge. The bridge spans the St. Clair river at the southernmost tip of Lake Huron, connecting Port Huron on the American side and the Canadian cities of Sarnia and Point Edward.

Warren Banker Escapes
Within five minutes the superstructure of the ship was a mass of fire, sending many of the 255 passengers overboard. Some jumped into the water as others leaped into the water as panic overcame the passengers.

The fire broke out about 8:30 a. m. as most of the passengers were eating breakfast.

C. R. Brewster, a Warren, O., banker who was aboard the ship, escaped by sliding down a rope over the side. He was at breakfast when he saw flames burst out of the freight shed.

"All of a sudden the ship was in flames," he said, "and the first thing I thought of was to get off."

Brewster said he had tried for three months to get accommodations for the Hamonic cruiser, finally getting his tickets only two days ago when some one else cancelled a reservation.

"I was eating breakfast with my husband when we saw fire in the freight sheds," said Mrs. Alec McBain of Berkley, Mich., who was taken to a Sarnia hospital suffering from burns and shock.

"Suddenly the ship caught fire, and I felt if I didn't get off I would burn to death. I slid down a rope into the water."

McBain was rescued with his wife. Aiding in fighting the fire were the U. S. Coast Guard, the Port Huron Fire Service and nearby Self-ridge field.

None of the passengers was able to save personal belongings, so fast did the flames break over the ship. No accurate estimates of the number of injured were available.

374 Vessels, 129 Engines Knocked Out

GUAM, July 17.—A daring American naval task force steamed to within 80 miles of Tokyo tonight (Japan time) and bombarded industrial targets around Hitachi on the heels of an eight hour raid by 1,500 planes from American and British carrier planes in the area of the Japanese capital.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced the bombardment while it was still underway only a few hours after he reported carrier planes had knocked out 374 Japanese vessels and 129 locomotives in their weekend sweep over northern Japan.

The new battleship Iowa led the bombardment group in the closest approach of any U. S. naval task force to the Japanese capital.

It was the third naval bombardment of Japan's vulnerable coastal industries within four days.

In a week, Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey's Third fleet has ranged from Tokyo to the northern end of Japan and back again, smashing with bombs and shells steel, munitions, and oil plants, shipping and rail transportation and airdromes.

Japan has taken it without more that token resistance.

It was the first combined American-British operation against the Japanese homeland and the fourth carrier strike in eight days, including the Saturday-Sunday attack on northern Japan in coordination with naval bombardments which crippled the steel mill cities of Muroran and Kamaishi.

Vice Adm. John McCain's carrier planes caught hundreds of ships and surface craft scurrying out of harbors like ants. But 374 didn't get away.

Enemy Shipping, Rail Transportation Hit
Reliable estimates placed Nippon's remaining usable shipping at less than 2,000,000 tons. The enemy's rail transport was dealt an equally heavy blow.

The revised toll of carrier damage last Saturday and Sunday included: SUNK—140 ships and surface craft, totaling 71,000 tons and including nine small warships.

DAMAGED—234 vessels, totaling 88,000 tons, and including ten warcraft.

Eighty-four locomotives were destroyed, 45 damaged. Military installations, ammunition dumps, air fields, factories, and transportation facilities were wrecked on northern Honshu, main island of Japan, and Hokkaido, northernmost island of Nippon to which Japanese have been fleeing from Superfortress raids.

2,000 Planes In Today's Pre-Invasion Blow
They roared in over a 35 mile stretch of coastline approximately 50 miles east and north of the Japanese capital. With approximately 500 Superfortresses lashing at four industrial and transportation centers, at least 2,000 planes were hurled against Japan in today's pre-invasion attack.

The combined American-British attack under command of Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey, Jr., came a week after 1,000 planes of the U. S. Third fleet roamed virtually unopposed over most of the 80 airdromes encircling the Nipponese capital.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique, issued while the attack was still underway, ended the one-day mystery as to the whereabouts of the mighty Third fleet since two of its battleship-led task forces were bombed through the center of northern Japan over the weekend.

A 500-plane Superfortress fire raid on four Japanese cities possibly an hour ahead of the fleet carrier attacks started conflagrations in Numazu, Kuwana, Hiratsuka and Oita.

The first announcement gave no word of results.

Superforts Dodge Suicide Planes To Fire Jap Targets

BY AL DOPKING
GUAM, July 17.—Plowing unopposed through a flight of "flying bomb" suicide planes, and enemy rocket fire, more than 450 Superfortresses left "general conflagrations" billowing from four more Japanese war centers today.

Returning crewmen reported very little enemy opposition—but Japanese fighters tackled raiding Mustangs Monday in a far-ranging dogfight that ended with 40 enemy planes downed or probably downed.

The reappearance of interceptors may have resulted from a prod by the emperor. Tokyo radio said Hirohito had sent a court councillor to visit the army air force headquarters.

Targets of the B-29s—stretched along 450 miles of the homeland from Tokyo to the inland sea—were:

Hiratsuka, an arsenal, aircraft and armaments center 34 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Numazu, ordnance—armaments producer 55 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Kiwanu, tool and parts producing center 12 miles southwest of Nagoya.

Oita, naval air depot and important rail center of Kyushu.

Fly Above Clouds
Because of almost complete cloud cover, bombing was by instrument. The strike was the 53rd fire mission against Japan from Marianas bases.

Superforts also hit Odawara and Chigasaki southwest of Tokyo on Sagami bay, Tokyo announced. The Japanese admitted fires were started.

Nonconformist Chennault

Lt. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's deeds as a nonconformist are a high spot in aviation's record. His retirement as commander of the 14th Air Force, successor to the volunteer force that won fame and embarrassed Japan as the Flying Tigers, finds him well equipped with laurels.

Gen. Chennault has stirred anew the suspicion that organization which tends to penalize nonconformists because nonconformists generally are wrong robs itself of the benefits of nonconformists who prove to be right. His name and his record in aviation are bracketed in current history with Gen. Billy Mitchell, whose "radicalism" set the pace for modern aerial warfare. Is it too much to hope that the United States, as part of its preparedness for future military emergencies, might overcome the tendency of military organizations to put a premium on orthodox ideas and a penalty on all ideas that threaten to upset the status quo?

The Unspoken Reservation

The Senate foreign relation committee's recommendation of the United Nations charter apparently clears the way for ratification by the whole Senate without amendment or reservation. But this prospect of easy passage does not blot out the existence of an unspoken reservation.

Senators and their constituents, however thoroughly convinced they may be of the proposed charter's value, all think of it as an instrument of potential value, whose actual value remains to be seen. That will be determined by events whose outcome is still indeterminate.

In a literal sense, the United States is giving the theory of cooperative security to be brought about by a United Nations organization its approval as a potentiality. The organization itself has no magic in it. It cannot accomplish anything unless its signatories do everything in their power to make it work.

The question of sincerity cannot be settled by voting. It must be settled by day-to-day proof that sincerity exists and that the United Nations are capable of rising to the responsibilities of international cooperation. That was the test the League of Nations could not survive. It is the test the United Nations organization must pass if it is to be anything more than the pious resolution of great purpose whose adoption is now virtually a foregone conclusion.

Japan's Most Vulnerable Spot

Battleship bombardment of industrial targets on the exposed Japanese coast marks fulfillment in World War II of one of the classic functions of naval gunfire—destruction of important coastal installations. Japan's most vulnerable spot as an island power is the exposed position of so many of its key areas.

Japanese existence in peacetime and its security in wartime both depend on sea power. The fact that United States ships of the line, including airplane carriers, which now share the former importance of battleships and cruisers in that classification, can maneuver off the Japanese coast is a direct challenge Japan's naval power.

If it cannot turn back this threat with its ships and air power, it will have lost its last hope of security. The first naval bombardment, against Kamaishi, 275 miles north of Tokyo, will be repeated against other prime targets—and eventually will be carried into Tokyo Bay itself. The beginning of ship-to-shore bombardment is a major climax.

The ultimate strategy is plain. It is to gain mastery of the air over Japan and the sea that surrounds it. Thereafter, it is to exploit this mastery to invade the Japanese islands at many points with land forces. Meanwhile with supply lines cut, Japan's homeland economy would be weakened and ultimately ruined. These things are as obvious to the Japanese as they are to Americans. The pattern of their defeat is the reverse of the pattern of American victory. People who live on islands should not throw high explosives without control of the seas.

'Chosen Instrument' or Competition

President Truman says that it will be all right for three American air lines to operate over international routes for the next seven years. But Senator Pat McCarran, of Nevada, says it ain't necessarily so.

The Senator is a champion of the "chosen instrument" as opposed to "controlled competition" in our international commercial flying. He has written a bill to create a single "All-American Flag Line" which he is expected to bring to the Senate floor shortly, after months of committee hearings that wound up in a tie vote.

Nothing beyond confusion can be predicted if Congress should vote to create this one-company air line. The President has signed the Civil Aeronautics Board certification which would permit Pan American, TWA and American Export to fly as far as Moscow, Bombay and Calcutta. And there seems to be considerable doubt that the McCarran bill, if passed, could be retroactive in the face of the Truman-signed certification.

Nevertheless, Senator McCarran and others are continuing their campaign for the "chosen instrument." They argue that the United States can compete with other countries' government-subsidized aviation monopolies only by creating a one-company line of its own.

It is true that our international aviation was in the hands of one company until the war, in spite of the CAA act of 1938 which permitted regulated competition to the extent of serving domestic and international commerce, the postal system, and national defense.

The McCarran bill apparently would recreate and perpetuate the monopoly. It would permit domestic carriers to acquire interest in the single overseas line, if they desired, in proportion to their individual share of the total gross revenue of all commercial air lines. But it is foreseeable that several domestic competitors' attempt to run a harmonious business might result in confusion and eventual operation by one company.

Champions of the "chosen instrument" have failed to prove that elimination of competition in international flying would reduce the single company's costs, increase its efficiency, or lessen the need of government subsidy.

The history of our industrial progress suggests that competition has promoted, rather than retarded, low costs and high efficiency, and that it has stimulated research, production and employment. On the other hand, the history of "chosen instruments" shows that government regulation of a single company usually winds up in government control of it.

It seems safe to say that the United States government and most of its citizens don't want monopoly or subsidized control. The State, War, Navy, Justice and Commerce departments are on record in favor of "controlled competition" in aviation. The President's signing of the CAB certification indicates that he is of the same mind.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, July 18

THE astral indications are for a rather discouraging and frustrating state of affairs, with many petty anxieties and annoyances combining to defeat desired ends. The most encouraging sign is for proceeding with calm, quiet and well-organized strategy or procedure, refraining from taking others, even influential persons, into the scheme, selecting for intimate confidence those of tried and true dependability and trust. There are many loopholes for disappointment or unprofitable complications. Resist talkative impulses.

Those whose birthday it is have little promise of accomplishing their desired objectives, as these seem to be beset by many petty and annoying occurrences and situations, which may upset and perplex. In such a dilemma it might be advisable to refrain from taking dubious persons into plans and prospects, although tested friends may be trusted. However, a quiet, self-contained and reliant program may be more profitable than noisy gestures or procedures. Shrewd and well-directed strategies may bring fair returns. Subdue emotions.

A child born on this day may have some clever ideas and creative abilities but may make little headway if too trusting or confiding in designing persons.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Source of Undulant Fever

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Certain infections, when they first start, cause severe symptoms, such as fever, headache, sickness to the stomach and vomiting. Then, after the infection continues for a long time or becomes chronic, the symptoms become less severe but still may be disabling. One of the infections which may act in this way is undulant fever or brucellosis. This disorder is caused by a germ known as the Brucella abortus.

The symptoms of chronic brucellosis, according to Doctor Eric Lehr of East St. Louis, are much like that of tuberculosis. There are night fever which may persist for weeks or months, weakness, tiredness, loss of weight and, often, inflammation of the joints of the spine. Lymph glands also may become enlarged and tender.

Hard To Diagnose

The condition is not always an easy one to diagnose. However, there are various laboratory tests which are used that may be of help. For example, there is a skin test which is made by injecting killed Brucella abortus germs into the upper layer of the skin. If the test is positive, a red swelling occurs at the point of the injection. A positive test means that an infection has been present, but may have been cleared up. In other words, the skin test may be positive, even though no symptoms of brucellosis are present.

The most accurate test is to find the germs of the disease in the blood. However, in the chronic cases, such a positive blood culture often cannot be obtained. The mere fact that these tests are negative does not mean that the patient is not suffering from brucellosis.

Brucellosis is contracted for the most part by the drinking of milk from infected animals, which has not been pasteurized. So, in other words, getting rid of the disease in animals will keep it from being contracted by human beings. Doctor Lehr recommends that all animals be tested for the presence of brucellosis. If they are found to have the disease they should be slaughtered. Of course, meat cutters and packing house employees who will come in contact with infected animals must be taught how to handle them properly.

The next important step is to enforce the proper pasteurization of milk. When milk is treated in this way, the germs which produce brucellosis are destroyed. Because chronic brucellosis is becoming more common and can result in so much disability it is important that these measures be established.

St. Louis Browns Determined To Make It Tough For Champs

Time Playing Out, Browns Going Hard On Top Outfits

By JACK HAND

Time is beginning to run out on the "Cinderella Men" from St. Louis in their quest of a second American league flag but Luke Sewell's St. Louis Browns are determined to make things tough on any would-be successors.

Washington, who was making motions toward the first place Detroit Tigers were somewhat subdued when the Browns hit town last night and clubbed the Nats twice.

Even the Browns in sixth place, 6½ games off the pace, still are factors in the wide open flag scramble that gives every club in the circuit, except the Philadelphia A's at least a hope and prayer of making the grade.

The Browns really spoiled the evening for the Washington crowd as they beat Johnny Niggeling in the opener, 7-3 and defeated Roger Wolff in the finale, 5-1.

Detroit whacked the Yankees, 9-4. Stubby Overmire tamed New York for the Tigers' first triumph of their second eastern invasion.

Bobo Newsom, who lost 12 before entering the win column, won his second straight decision, 7-1, on a two-hitter against Chicago. Russ Christopher, the A's bell cow, was handed his fourth successive beating, 6-2, in the first game.

Cleveland put the damper on Boston, 3-2.

Chicago maintained its four-game advantage in the National by coming from behind in the last of the ninth with two runs and a 4-3 shade over New York's Van Mungo.

St. Louis clung to second by shutting out the Braves, 2-0, behind Harry Brecheen.

Tom Seaver, of Brooklyn, lasted all the way to defeat Pittsburgh, 8-4.

Bowman to Face His Jinx Team Tonight

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, July 17—Big Joe Bowman sends his right-arm slants against the Philadelphia Phillies tonight with hopes of avenging the only defeat he has suffered since joining the Cincinnati Reds late in May. Dick Mauney will oppose him.

Bowman, who was acquired on waivers from the Boston Red Sox, had a string of five victories when he faced the Phillies July 1. He lasted just five innings and was charged with a loss as Philadelphia went on to win.

However, Bowman has added to his win record during the past two weeks with a pair of triumphs over the Brooklyn Dodgers, and will be gunning for No. 8 tonight.

FERRISS OBJECT IN TRIBE'S PATH

Is Main Obstacle In Way Of Series Edge With Boston Red Sox

BOSTON, July 17—Rubber-armed Dave Ferriss was the immovable object in the path of the Cleveland Indians today in the deciding game of their Boston Red Sox series.

The Tribe topped the Sox 3 to 2 yesterday on the strength of Pat Seery's seventh home with one aboard.

Ex-serviceman Randy Heflin held the Tribe in check until the sixth inning when a double by Dutch Meyer, Seery's circuit clout, three other bingles and a pair of walks netted three runs, enough to take the decision.

Starter Allie Reynolds was credited with his ninth victory against seven defeats but was removed in the seventh frame after his wildness permitted two Boston runs to score. Ed Klieeman retired the side and pitched scoreless ball the rest of the way.

Steve Gromek will attempt to notch his 11th win at Ferriss' expense today.

short time—provided nothing goes wrong? No names mentioned. Wonder what's in the story that Great Lakes may not have a football team next fall since Buddy Young and several other stars who figured prominently in Lieut. Paul Brown's plans have been shipped out.

SKY'S THE LIMIT
For two years, the Middletown club in the Ohio State league has been known as the "middles" and last year it finished in the middle of the standing... recently the club directors changed the nickname to "rockets".... The players took the hint and Middletown rocketed from second place into a comfortable lead over the Springfield Giants.... "Now," adds Lee Addison, the National Association publicist, "Manager Ivy Griffin is faced with the task of proving that the same rockets which shoot up can defy the laws of gravity and stay up."

FUTURE BOOK
Professional Golfers Association leaders plan to get in touch with British officials in the near future with an idea of reviving the Ryder cup match in 1946 in England.

Fans, who already have welcomed Al Benton and Hank Greenberg back from the armed forces, "are in for some very good news in the future."

situation which will call for much give and take.

Closely identified with this are the self-determination and sovereignty of small nations to which all the Big Three subscribe. Impingement on these cardinal rights could cause a break among the trio. But here enters a new and delicate element, and this is that great powers will insist that neighboring small nations be friendly. The outstanding example of this so far has been Poland, though there are others and there will be more.

This desire of a major power to make sure that good relations with its neighbors are air-tight is generally conceded as justifiable. However, it's easy enough to see that a case might arise in which the sovereignty of a small country would be impaired by some great power in order to bring the former into line. Appropos of this, when the Polish government in London charged that Russia was depriving Poland of sovereignty and self-determination, Britain and America insisted that their Russian ally take steps which would insure that Poland had her rights.

As remarked in yesterday's column, continuation of confidence among the Big Three depends on dissipation of any suspicions they may have of one another's intentions. Western Europe long has had pronounced suspicions that Moscow was bent on spreading Communism throughout the continent—throughout the world, for that matter. This suspicion hasn't been dissipated and probably won't be until Russia's actions have made her intentions clear.

That is another danger spot. When Moscow in 1943 announced the abolishment of the Comintern (the general staff for a world-wide dissemination of Communism) it was in effect a declaration that this crusade had been abandoned. Should anything happen to give Britain or other countries of western Europe the idea that the Red campaign was still being directed from Moscow, it might cause trouble.

America, of course, is so far removed from Europe that she is less in danger of involvement in continental difficulties than are her two Allies. Her turn perhaps will come with the defeat of Japan and the readjustment of Asiatic affairs.

Give us 12 months of good going and any suspicions which may exist will be removed. Meantime the Big Three have to keep well in mind that the portion of Europe over which the Hitlerian war was fought is full of political mines and booby-traps and that one must tread circumspectly.

Jap Massacre of 2,000 Filipinos Is Revealed

INFANTA, Luzon, July 17.—Filipinos in this isolated east Luzon coastal town told today of a Japanese massacre of 2,000 natives in wholesale slaughter and looting that ravaged their infamy in Manila.

They raided scattered outlying districts, stabbing and slashing Filipinos in their beds, declared Lt. Col. Jaime Manzano.

Bodies of men, women and children were strewn about huts and the streets of the settlements two months ago.

Mayor Faustino P. Juntreal told the correspondent that the Japanese massacred the natives after finding American canned goods and learning of guerillas in the villages.

Lt. Comdr. Richard Giffen, commanding officer of the youth, William Wells Parker, of Toledo, O., quoted him as saying he hit the woman with a beer bottle in his hotel room and dumped her body into the alley.

In Boston, Owen W. Eames, 43, former Springfield, Mass., pastor and discharged army chaplain, said he and his wife had been estranged for four years.

Civilian and naval authorities are to confer on what action will be taken against Parker. No charges have been placed against the youth pending the conference. He was held in custody by the navy.

SHOOTS WILD DOG AFTER SHEEP DIE

LISBON, July 17.—Game Warden Lon W. Boring yesterday killed what he believed to be a "wild dog," half fox and half dog, on the Galen Bowman farm near Guilford lake, where the animal had killed eight sheep on the farm.

Boring said the animal was similar to 10 killed in Butler township four years ago after an episode of sheep killing had aroused officials. There are more in a swamp near the lake, he believes.

The animal weighed 40 pounds, was 21 inches high and was a dark brown color, the game warden said.
